OpenCL and HSA (heterogeneous systems architecture) are two different methods of programming computers with CPUs and GPUs. Compare the performance and user-friendliness of the two programming methodologies.